

To Whom it May Concern,

On behalf of Friends of Prado Day Center in San Luis Obispo, I'm proud to recommend Mark Horvath to your agency.

In an attempt to connect with individuals who have similar interests in fighting homelessness, I was referred via Twitter to Mark as someone "who is doing amazing work with the homeless."

Since we have seen a substantial increase in traffic at the center, our priority is to educate the public about the widespread problem of homelessness in our small town. Mark completely sympathized with the dilemma so we asked him to visit us as part of his "Invisible People" campaign.

Mark came to our center fully committed in portraying the homeless in our area while showing how our center supports those in need. As a journalist with much integrity, he is committed to filming a high quality story and we could see his dedication as he started talking with our homeless clients about their personal experiences.

When meeting Mark I could feel the enthusiasm and passion he has for fighting homelessness. Not only did he jump at the chance of helping our center, but he was very professional and eager to maintain a proactive relationship with us. I see Mark as a light at the end of a tunnel and I would highly recommend his services to agencies and centers everywhere.

If you have any questions please feel free to contact me.
